HARTFORD, Conn.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--The Hartford Financial Services Group, Inc., (NYSE: HIG - News), today announced that it has been selected by Computerworld's Business Intelligence Perspectives as a winner of its "Best Practices in Business Intelligence" awards program in the category of 'Creating an Agile BI Infrastructure.' The award identifies and acknowledges excellence among users of business intelligence solutions and approaches.

Using agile development, a disciplined project management process, The Hartford's property & casualty information technology team designed a leading-edge solution for the company's Research and Product Development organization that allows fast access to research data and the ability to use that research to creatively bring competitive products to market.

"In receiving this prestigious recognition, it affirms the critical role technology plays in our ability to compete in the marketplace," said Bob Ingram, senior vice president and chief information officer of The Hartford's property and casualty operations. "Through this solution, our business is equipped to support pricing sophistication and accuracy, more quickly recognize changing trends and ultimately make better business decisions."

"Today's competitive economy demands that IT enterprises effectively and efficiently implement successful business intelligence strategies. The organizations we've selected have demonstrated the ability to devise and implement solutions that ensure the most efficient IT infrastructure and advancing the larger goals of the organization," said Ellen Dally, senior vice president events, IDG Enterprise.
